Comments On World Events

By An Onlooker

Prevention and Punishment of Crime

A conspiracy to kidnap Mr J. S. McLean, President of Canadian Packers, was thwarted, before the attempt was made, by the arrest of the conspirators. Several U.S. journals have commented upon this as showing how well we do things in Canada as compared with the way things are done there. H. L. Mencken points out that the number of arrests compared with the number of crimes in the U.S indicates that the police generally do their duty. It is after that that justice falls down, and the fault is not with the law but with the procedure. Shyster lawyers and corrupt officials block the way to the penitentiary or the gallows, and sentimental sob-sisters-and-brothers send flowers to, or sign petitions for those who have landed in jail in spite of the law's delays. In Canada we can congratulate ourselves for having a judicial system that deals efficiently with criminals, but we have the same sort of sentimentalists here whose activities add to the difficulties of penitentiary officials. The ferment in Portsmouth is kept up by inmates who, through the grape-vine telegraph know what is going on in the outside world and believe they have the sympathy and support of many good men and women, besides some prominent politicians and influential newspapers.

Hitler is Still Suspect

It is not an easy task for Hitler to dissociate himself from the 144 Austrian Nazis who killed Chancellor Dolfuss and expected to escape to Germany under free conduct given them by the German ambassador at Vienna. He immediately recalled the ambassador, but that did not allay the suspicion that the plot was hatched in Germany Like the murder of D'Engheim by Napoleon it was worse than a crime, it was a blunder. Nations committed to the protection of Austria could hardly be expected to wink at this outrage upon a country rent by faction and powerless to defend itself against foreign aggression. It is not to be thought that the man who ordered the killing of several hundred Germans would hesitate to order the killing of one Austrian.

Reducing the Civil Service

Under every government long in power the civil service is liable to become top-heavy and a certain amount of liquidation becomes necessary and desirable. The same may also be said of any large business. Through favoritism or a generous aversion from dismissals, the staff becomes unwieldy and liquidation can only be made with a change of administration. The new government of Ontario is applying the axe in a way that bids fair to redeem a pre-election pledge unless party pressure forces it to fill the vacancies thus created with its own partisans.

As a resident correspondent at Ottawa, Mr. Cook was in close touch with the leading actors in political life from the days of Sir John A. Macdonald to the present. He writes entertainly, and without prejudice, of the men and events that loomed large in Canadian

Tractor Overturns; Seriously Injured

Gordon McIntyre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave McIntyre of Vulcan, was seriously injured on Tuesday afternoon of last week when he was thrown from the seat of a tractor while towing a water tank down thre Technical School hill in Calgary. The accident occurred when the tractor had gained too much speed in its downward journey, and to check the speed the driver turned the tractor to the side. The tractor overturned throwing him to the ground. At the same time the tank of water burst. Serious injuries resulted. He suffered fractures of the left arm and leg and a deep gash on the head. He was removed to the General Hospital in Calgary where, at the present time, he is resting as well as can be expected. It will be several months before he will be able to get around again.

Vulcan Wins Last Scheduled Boxla Game

Attendance Good Under New Admission rrangements; New Schedule Will Probably Be Drawn Up After Harvest

Completing the first schedule in the new Foothills Box Lacrosse league, the Vulcan team defeated the Nanton boys 7-5 at the arena on Wednesday. The game was a strenuous one and several of the players emerged with bruises, aches and pains. Combination plays of the locals deserved the win by the two goal margin. The new admission arrangement made for the largest crowd yet to attend a lacrosse game in Vulcan. Over two hundred attended. This arrangement admitted one lady with a gentleman or two students on a twenty-five cent ticket.

Should a new schedule be drawn up after harvest, as it is expected, and this arrangement still continues, the attendance will be much greater.

Hail Strikes Standing Crops In Districts South of Vulcan

Various Damage Reported; From 50 to 100 per cent Making Average 75 per cent.; Strip Five Miles Wide

Hail storms passed over the district to the south of Vulcan twice this week. On Monday a light hail storm fell, but was not extensive, doing damage to only a few fields. But on Wednesday evening an extensive storm passed through an area from east of Champion to west of Cayley. A report from one of the Vulcan grain elevators Wednesday stated that 14,000 acres in the Champion district were touched with hail. The damage in the immediate Vulcan district seems scattered. The Kirkcaldy district was badly hit to the south.

Weather this week has been unfavorable to harvesting. Rain fell throughout the district Monday. Tuesday morning a two hour rain fell to the north of town. Decimal 34 of an inch of rain was recorded by the rain gauge at the Searle Grain elevator.

Master Allan Walker Fractures Right Leg

Misfortune befell Master Allan Walker, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Walker of the Reid Hill district on Monday about midday resulting in a painful accident that caused a nasty break in the right leg. The young lad was out riding in the pasture among horses when one suddenly kicked at the horse on which he was riding, unfortunately hitting his right leg. He fell to the ground, and lay for nearly an hour before alarm was felt at the farm home. Immediately a search was made and he was found suffering greatly. He was rushed to the hospital in town, and is now resting comfortably, but will not be able to leave the hospital for several weeks. Great pluck was shown by Allan when he tried several times to walk back to the farm after the accident happened. We hope he has a speedy recovery.

A large number of members from the Kirkcaldy, Champion and Vulcan Women's Institutes gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McDonald, seven miles west of Champion, Thursday afternoon, being entertained at a lawn social and garden party, sponsored by the Good Deeds W.I. About 75 persons were in attendance. After a short business session had been concluded, games and contests were indulged in. The game which caused the greatest merriment, however, was Chinese bridge. Mrs. Wm. Peterson of Vulcan won the first prize, while Mrs. Hagerman of Kirkcaldy took the consolation. Later in the afternoon, a delicious luncheon was served by the hostesses on the spacious lawn. Mr. and Mrs. McDonald are to be highly complimented on their beautiful garden and splendid growth of shrubs and flowers in the lawn, which helped in no small way to make the afternoon such an enjoyable one.

Reid Hill Store Closes After Two Decades

Postoffice Remains Open; First Opened by O. Reid in Early Days; Look For Successor

After being in operation to the service of the farmers of the Reid Hill district for over two decades the Reid Hill store has closed doors. J. O'Connor has removed the stock of his store to Granger, Alberta. The postoffice still remains open and a successor is being sought so that the general merchandise business may be continued. Mrs. O'Connor is operating the postoffice at the present moment.

Back in 1906 the Reid Hill store was opened by O. Reid one mile south of its present location. Later it was operated by the late Herbert Cooper. He operated it until 1916, selling out to A. Burdett. The store at this time was situated at its present location. Soon after it was bought by E. Hopkins and within the last few years by B. D. Lockhart and last by J. O'Connor.

One field inspected while being threshed, was yielding 22 bushels to the acre and weighing 61 lbs. It was a summerfallowed field and the quality of wheat was good. CHARLES CLARK, Proprietor

LOOKING FORWARD

Although the West is still somewhat incredulous that times are improving, it is apparently indisputable that conditions are bettering themselves in other parts of the Dominion. A half yearly survey of the whole picture shows many lines of industry working round to normal. Included in the brighter phases of the national scene is the fact that business generally is 40 per cent. above the low depression mark of March 1933, and is 10 per cent. over December 1933. Employment is up 18 per cent. and foreign trade is increased 43 per cent. Electric power output is 28 per cent better and construction contracts are up 85 per cent. There are fewer business failures by 28 per cent. and high grade loans are at the highest level in fifteen years.

Carloadings are 21 per cent. ahead of 1933, and newsprint production is up 41 per cent.

Although these facts do not gain full value in the minds of those who as yet, have experienced no quickening of life in their business, yet the increased trade and general pick-up should gradually bring some result to the country west of the Great Lakes. We realized last year very emphatically, how much of our prosperity or adversity is due to nature. We are realizing this anew in 1934 when excellent prospects have dwindled to fair prospects. The probability of wheat prices almost treble those of last year, and a crop prospect generally better than last year, encourages the belief that more money will be circulating in the West, than for some time past. Hog prices have been well maintained, and bring a little revenue in to most farms. At present the position of the cattle men, whether they be ranchers or formers, is the most discouraging phase of agriculture in the West. It is possible that this may be affected by the Natural Products Marketing Act.

These good reports of business from Eastern Canada can scarcely be echoed as yet in the West. But a couple of months from now, the Western scene may be much more hopeful.

MANY ARE SEEKING

At present, Albertans are onfronted with many political theories and choices. Each group, no doubt, believes conscientiously in its own doctrine as a cure for economic ills. On the same evening last week, radio listeners heard Hon. H. H. Stevens speak on behalf of the Conservative policies in improving Canadian conditions, while over another broadcast, G. G. McGeer was denouncing existing monetary methods. Mr. McGeer is an emphatic advocate of a national banking and credit system controlled completely by the government. These speakers were dealing with Federal matters, which are not the direct concern of the province. But within our own boundaries we have the old parties of Liberal and Conservative, as well as the U.F.A.; the C.C.F. and the Social Credit.

Holding the attention at the moment is the challenging Social Credit group. This, like the C.C.F., is a product of the times, a group expression of a desire for drastic changes, and under Mr. Aberhart's guidance the Social Credit plan is growing in influence. To ignore its importance as an element in the next election is to be blind indeed. It would seem the part of wisdom for all parties to concede the sincerity and earnestness of other parties, and to give some study to the plans and policies of each.

One thing must be believed, that the leaders and followers of each different faction believe that their way is the best way for provincial recovery. The bewildering thing to the humble voter who has to make his choice of leader, is that there are so many able men holding such divergent views on how to save a province of 700,000 people. It would be a great relief to a simple people if the leaders could reach some unanimity of plan and policy amongst themselves.

A DIPLOMATIC GAME

Strange things are happening these days in Russia. For some time just outside Moscow, Red Army cavalrymen mounted on spirited chargers and armed with long-handled mallets have been seen galloping up and down a grassy meadow swishing at something apparently hiding in the grass. Their strenuous activities have caused tremendous excitement and factory workers on their way home have wondered if these horsemen were preparing for next Easter's maneuvers or whether some enemy had suddenly declared war and mobiliaztion had begun.

But now it can be told. First polo match ever played in Soviet Russia has recently taken place and these cavalry men were practicing for it.. To complete an almost incredible picture, United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt officiated as umpire.

Inquiries at the Foreign Office brought forth the admission that for months past Mr. Bullitt and his personal secretary, Charles Thayer, have been teaching the Russians the fine points of this typical sport of the capitalists. Moreover, it has all been done with the consent and approval of War Commissar Voroshiloff! In fact, he and Foreign Commissar Litvinoff were spectators at the match in which seven Russians and Mr. Thayer took part, and were seen to applaud every time a goal was scored. Is Comrade Voroshiloff awake to the subtle depths of American diplomacy and is Commissar Litvinoff able to perceive where our cunning Ambassador may be leading him?

Now that the Russians have tasted the delights of a colorful sport like polo, will they ever again be content to satisfy their competitive instincts with rivet-driving contests or the snappy sport of seeing who can most quickly master a tractor's steering wheel?

Today polo. Tomorrow perhaps some other concession to capitalism.And then chi sa?--Christian Science Monitor

TREES AND DAMS!

"In fifty years, man has almost succeeded in turning a great fertile belt of our Western Canada into a Sahara; perhaps the greatest single instance of wastefulness that the world has ever seen." In these startling words, W. L. McTavish, editor of the Winnipeg Tribune, presses his scheme for the reclamation of the drought area of the prairie provinces. To impress the importance upon the city business man, he pictures the buried cities of the Orient, excavated from under tons of sand, with their ancient burial a result of natural processes. Not that our prairie cities are ever likely to become submerged in sweeping sands. But steps must be taken to undo man's folly, before permanent desert areas are created.

"If the first generation of Western ploughmen had been wise, or if we in our generation had been wise, we would have foreseen the result of the wholesale drainage which has been in progress. We have drained lakes and sloughs to get more land to plough, destroying natural reservoirs that have not been replaced. The consequences of that folly are upon us. The water in the subsoil is steadily sinking and is now of little or no value to crops.

"It is not enough to have the assurance that normal seasons would bring a return of production to these fertile drought lands. But we must undo some of the damage we have done. We are apparently entering a cycle of wet years, and if we make proper use of that period, we need never again fear the disaster brought by drought in the past four years.

"Some of the necessary measures could be undertaken individually, some municipally or provincially. But the more expensive measures would necessarily be undertaken as a federal project. One eminent engineer has set reclamation costs at $400,000,000. This seems big money, but it must be remembered that this area, which must be abandoned unless reclaimed, ordinarily produces $300 or 400 million dollars worth of new wealth each year. It has thousands of miles of railways, of homes, and churches, and public buildings, an investment of hundreds of millions. If $400,000,000 be spent over the next ten years, it will bring returns many times that amount.

"The farmers themselves have some means at hand, by change in tillage methods, in strip farming, crop rotation, the planting of caragana hedges to conserve snowfall. The scientists can attempt to produce a variety of wheat requiring half the moisture for growth. For the Dominion, as a whole, the work would consist of dams and trees, dams everywhere to hold water and give a chance at the subsoil. About four-fifths of precipitation in the West is sent out of the country in the spring months, and is not available when needed. Large dams and little dams, and reforestation on a grand scale bordering every lake, and beside every slough that can be created.

"Twenty engineers in a fortnight's conference, with available Western data could outline a general policy. In a year it could be under way, and in ten years there would be definite assurance against a recurrence of the drought conditions that have cost the West and the whole Dominion so much money in the past four years.

THOSE MONTHLY DIVIDENDS

Chas. L. Willis of the Stettler Independent, in surveying the political field, has a good word for Gerry McGeer's scheme of national control of credit and currency.. But he also speculates with interest on the Douglas System of Social Credit, and in his reflections, he refers to that interesting question of monthly dividends. He says:

"Talking about monthly dividends these are already a part of our economic order and have been for some years. For example, the doctors have been handing out monthly dividends each month to their patients who are unable to pay.

"The merchants are paying out monthly dividends by having on their books a large list of accounts in arrears.

"The farmers are paying out monthly dividends by being forced to raise wheat, livestock and other primary products below the cost of production.

"Our relief system is founded upon the principle of monthly dividends, and all members of the community who are fortunate enough to pay their way, are handing out monthly dividends to those who are in a less fortunate position. That is what is known as 'the sharing of economic opportunity' and it will continue until a better economic system has been achieved.

"This system of monthly dividends is not equitable as it bears heavily on certain sections of the population. If the Douglas System would make it equitable for all sections of the community, by all means let us have it. It seems too good to be true, however, that a family of four, over twenty-one years of age, would, according to Mr. Aberhart, have a monthly dividend of $100.00."

LIVESTOCK PROBLEMS

No phase of agriculture has suffered more severely in the past five years, than the cattle producers. This assertion was borne out by facts presented before the Liberal Economic Conference in Calgary last week, by E. W. Brunsden, secretary of the Western Stock Growers' Association. He gave the yearly average selling prices in Canadian stockyards for the past six years, showing that while these were $7.55 per cwt. in 1923, the figure for 1933 was $3. No industry could long survive bankruptcy under such conditions, he said.

Cost of production as studied at the Range Experimental station at Manyberries covered varying sized herds, showed that two-year-old steers had a production cost of 6.42 per cwt. That figure allowed a 6 per cent return on investment. This would illustrate the struggle of the last five years.

Lack of export markets, said Mr. Brunsden, was a primary cause for the situation. In 1920, there were 500,000 head sent to United States alone, and in by-gone years Britain took annually as many as 163,000. Today, Canada's total export is limited to 50,000 head a year to Great Britain. This far off market, though greatly appreciated, is costly to reach.

The ruinous prices of recent years have caused many ranchers and farms to hold over their cattle, and the eventual outcome may be still more serious loss. In 1928 the total marketings in Canada were 964,000 head and in 1932 they were 619,000 head. There had been no decrease in cattle population to account for this difference and the conclusion must be that many cattle are being held. When the inevitable disposal of these cattle takes place, it will create a still more impossible situation for producers.

STEADY INCREASE IN GAS TAXATION

An increase of 25 per cent in four years in the average of gasoline taxes paid by motorists in Canada is recorded in figures of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics for 1933 just released.

From 1930 to 1932, the average tax in Canada was 5.44 cents per gallon. This year the average is 6.77 cents per gallon which equals approximately one quarter of the selling price of popular grades in various sections of the Dominion.

Taking a three year average from the Bureau's last official figures covering the total selling value of new cars produced in Canada, at the works for the period 1930-32, the last available, the average per annum totals $61,097,512. In the same three-year period motorists—ten per cent of the population—have paid out annually, an average of $44,420,707 in gas taxes and licenses, or the equivalent of 70 per cent. of the sale price of the cars., every year.

At the same time, while the gasoline tax has increased by 25 per cent, the selling value of cars at the works has dropped from $91,776,806 in 1930 to $38,560,796 and gasoline consumption has declined from over 600 million gallons in 1929 to 484,323,000 gallons in 1933.

Study of the Bureau's figures show a trend to decline in the consumption of gasoline almost simultaneously with the increase in the taxation of this product which, originally, was imposed to pay for highways but which now, in most provinces, is being absorbed into revenue to be used for general purposes.

Alarmed at the persistent increase in the taxation, motor executives governments that some alleviation will inevitably lead to the more extensive use of automobiles and that this will re-act to the benefit of provincial treasuries.

Determined or Discontent

Every year or so, events take place in Canada which show that changes of government can be made without violence, bloodshed, rioting or revolution, but these changes do not satisfy small and scattered minorities. The reason is that they do not want government by majorities. They want revolution by minorities. They do not want government at all—they want anarchy and confiscation They rail against capitalism, but they themselves want the fruits of other people's industry. They want to reap where others have sown. They would not be satisfied with a Liberal, Conservative, C.C.F., Labor or Socialist government and their satisfaction with a Communist government would be only temporary.

• • •

The Deciding Factor

There are still many electors who can be counted upon to vote as they always did, but the large number that does not hold to any party in particular is the deciding factor. Ever since the War that element has made a dead-set against the party that happens to be in power, and as a result there have been frequent changes of government

Such a tendency is not without its disadvantages. A government that has honestly and efficiently administered public affairs should be entitled to expect another lease. Virtue in itself should be sufficient reward, but politicians, like all other humans, should be offered some other prize besides the consciousness of duty done.

Elsewhere in this issue is an article stating that gas conservation restrictions had been removed in the Valley. This, however, is not a fact and the government states that conservation is still in effect. The erroneous impression was created through the misinterpretation of a notice in the Alberta Gazette. The article in the Gazette referred to old regulations restricting the flow to 40 per cent, but the conservation following a later order in Council in 1933, is still effective. It is said that the present restrictions are not worrying Valley oil production to any degree because the absorption process has entirely altered the situation.

AMENDMENTS DUE CAN CONSTITUTION

Changes in the British North America Act, on which confederation was founded, are considered to be long overdue, owing to developments not anticipated by the Fathers of Confederation.

Under the B.N.A. Act social services, direct relief and similar responsibilities were provincial in scope and the scope of taxation in province and dominion was definitely stated. The developments of the past four years in administration of relief, have created complications as between provinces and the Central Government, and it is considered that relief could be more efficiently and economically handled as a federal matter.

This necessitates a change in the constitution to bring relief under dominion jurisdiction.

Brant Crop Field Day

"There are evidently no slothful farmers in this district." This was the favorable comment made by speakers at the Field Day held in Brant over the week end, and the comment followed a survey of the grain plots grown at Brant under the crop-testing plan.

The crop testing plan is sponsored by the National, Searle, Northern, British American and Midland Pacific Grain Companies. The speakers at Brant were Major H. G. Strange of the Searle Grain Co., Dr. L. H. Newman, Dominion Cerealist, and Mr. Hayes of the Experimental Farm at Lethbridge.

After the examination of the 480 samples from the grain plots at Brant it was found that 52 per cent. of these graded A (good for seed that may be disposed of to neighbors); 29 per cent graded B (good for personal use for a year or two; and 19 per cent graded C (mixed varieties not good for seed). Major Strange announced that this result was the most favorable found in any district so far surveyed. The varieties shown to have been grown in the district were 28 per cent Marquis, 14 per cent Garnet; 6 per cent Reward; 41 per cent Red Bob; 10 per cent mixture of Red Bob and Marquis. Fifteen per cent of the growers did not know the name of the variety grown. In the local crop testing plan, there were 23 plots, 12 from the National Elevator, 9 from the Searle and 2 Midland Pacific. The territory included about 24 points within the radius of High River, Vulcan, Nanton and Cheadle, and about 150 were present to participate.

Major Strange

Major H. G. Strange spoke briefly, explaining the purpose of the crop testing plan. There are 50 of these plans functioning in Western Canada this year, representing 22,000 farmers. The object is to determine the mixtures of wheat grown in Western Canada, to show the types most adaptable to this country; to determine those farmers in each district who have the best seed grain; to provide the farmers growing poor varieties with best registered seed. Only in this way can Canada maintain its quality on world markets.

After commending those farmers whose samples fell into A class, it was advised that those growing B and C grades should trade or buy wheat for seed from the Grain Companies handling Grade A, or farmers growing Grade A.

At Cost Price

Any of the five contributing grain companies will supply the best registered seed grain at cost price, and this will be available for next spring's sowing. The local agent should be informed so that he may get in touch with head office. Last year 18,000 lbs. of sample grain were tested, and out of this 6000 farmers were found to be growing B and C grades. Five thousand of these farmers were supplied with better seed grain, and it was through this continuous effort, stated Major Strange, that Canadian wheat tops the world market. Other countries, however, are also improving the quality of their wheat, so constant endeavor is required for Canada to maintain its lead.

Dr. Newman

Dr. L. H. Newman added his congratulation to the district for the good quality of wheat, apparently grown on the majority of farms. The speaker showed how a cross between two varieties of grain, Red Bobs and Marquis for example, could produce hundreds of variations. One type might prove adaptable to one farm and ruinous on adjacent land. If there are different varieties in a field there is likely to be a lack of uniformity in ripening, and making it hard to thresh, and producing a poor grade on the whole. In time the "natural Cross" will produce inferior quality.

The speaker pointed out that in spite of the belief of many farmers that two clear grains would not combine to make a bearded variety, it had been proved that they do. For successful combining the crop must grow and ripen evenly and for this reason one good type of wheat should be used. If it is mixed one year and used for seed the next, the quality and grade will deteriorate. Year after year it becomes worse and money is lost. Now is the time to get registered seed and grow better grains.

Superior Grain

The reports that there are innumerable grain varieties in the West are ecconeous. The chief types are Marquis, Red Bob, Reward and Garnet.

Samples have been taken by the elevators and from cargoes going out of Canada for the past eight years and by this method authorities have determined that 95 per cent is Marquis, Red Bob, Garnet or Reward; few grow Red Fife and about 2 per cent grow an inferior quality. On the whole the wheat of Canada is good and the quality high.

Up to eight years ago a mixture of Fife and Marquis was sold in good faith as a good seed. This was withdrawn as being inferior to other registered grains and was not accepted by the Grain Growers Association. In this country there is still quite a quantity of this mixture still in seed.

It has been very evident by those interested in the crop testing plan that all farmers growing mixed grain are most anxious to change for better after they have been shown their error.

SOCIAL CREDIT NOW HAS WEEKLY PAPER

Creditable Publication Issued by New Group for Furtherance of Information

The Alberta Social Credit Chronicle is the new publication which has recently come into being, under the auspices of the Social Credit group of this province. This little weekly is devoted to an exposition of social credit principles, and information regarding provincial activities. It is under the editorial management of Charles Underwood and Frank Hollingworth of Calgary, both experienced newspaper men. Mr. Underwood was at one time editor of the Macleod Gazette, and Mr. Hollingworth has had long experience on the Canadian press. They are turning out a very creditable publication which started with a circulation of 4000 or 5000, and is steadily increasing its output. The paper enters into all the little villages and hamlets of the province where it finds quick and eager sale.

Mr. Wm. Aberhart is the dynamic force behind the growing popularity of this social and economic belief, and articles by Mr. Aberhart, Major Douglas and other leading exponents of the Social Credit system appear in each issue. Another department of the paper links together provincial activities in the report of study groups, public meetings and similar signs of vigorous growth.

This publication of Messrs. Underwood, Hollingworth and staff, is attracting favorable comment from a number of independent weeklies. It is regarded as an evidence of the enterprise and conviction of the Social Credit Group in Alberta, and a sign of the times, indicating that those not already informed on the principles of Social Credit would be well advised to wake up and at least inform themselves.

Here is something new, if not somewhat out of the ordinary. It comes from a writer in the Amherstburg Echo who suggests that unemployed be given work on the farms, not as ordinary hired men, but in painting barns with paint supplied by the government, or putting up fences, with wire supplied, and generally fixing up properties whose owners have been unable to spare the cash lately. He says he got the idea in Quebec where he saw so many white barns that he asked the reason and was told that the provincial government supplied the paint, providing the owner would put it on the barn.
